Missionaries to South Korea

Dear praying friends,

These past two months have included some progress as far as speaking and studying Korean. I am getting more accustomed to the Korean language and worship and am now able to understand the majority of announcements and directions of the service. Even though the preaching itself is much harder to understand, I am finding myself understanding more little by little. Kaitlyn's language learning journey has been significantly harder because of the constant attention that she must take from her study time to care for baby Madison. Despite this, she is working hard amidst discouragement. Your prayers for her confidence and effort are greatly appreciated.

I got a blessed opportunity to go on a missions trip with a group from our church in Korea to reach the players, coaches, and supporters at the Asian Games in Nagoya, Japan. This was a joint effort with a group from the States and a church in Nagoya. We were there for only a few short days, but were able to pass out hundreds of tracts to people in their own language. It was a blessed occasion and a great encouragement as well, but it also opened my eyes to just how spiritually dark Japan is and how great the need is for the gospel! On the first day of soulwinning, I had the opportunity to go with a missionary serving in Japan and we were able to share the gospel on two separate occasions to Japanese people! I pray that God will use the gospel witness they heard and the tracts that many others received to lead to a confession of faith in Jesus Christ as their personal Saviour from sin.

As I write this letter, I am recovering from an injury. Last week after church, we participated in a footsal activity (essentially soccer on a smaller field). While running, I suddenly twisted my ankle to the side and fell. I originally assumed that it was just a sprain, and after a checkup and x-rays at an orthopedic clinic, I was told that I had broken my tibia. For about a week, I used crutches and wore a splint on my foot while focusing on getting my swelling down. However, at a follow-up visit, the doctor requested x-rays and an MRI where we learned that I did not have a broken tibia, but I did completely sever a ligament on my foot. I will be having surgery tomorrow (11/3) to repair the ligament and recover over a period of 6 weeks.

Kaitlyn is now taking care of all of us and I am doing my best to take care of her so that she does not get overwhelmed. I thank God that He blessed me with such a good and caring wife that is eager to help in any way. Please pray for a quick and easy recovery so that we can get right back to serving God to the fullest.
